Nixon signs wage bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today signed a bill that will bring the minimum wage to $2.30 an hour for millions of American workers by Jan. 1, 1978.

Nixon signed the measure at his desk in the Oval Office, with Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan seated alongside.

In a White House statement, Nixon said, "Although I have some reservations about portions of this legislation, its basic purpose — to increase the minimum wage for working men and women of this country — deserves the support of all Americans."

The new law expands minimum wage coverage to an additional seven million workers. Some 49.4 million workers already were covered by minimum wage legislation.

Nixon vetoed a similar minimum wage bill last year.

Nixon objected to the 1973 minimum wage bill as being inflationary and because it did not include a youth differential permitting a lower rate for teenagers.

The 1974 bill, approved by Congress last month, contains only minor changes from the one Nixon vetoed.

It does not contain a youth differential but it does liberalize the present law slightly on employment of students, permitting them to work part-time — not more than 20 hours a week — at 85 per cent of the regular wage floor.

The latest bill would bring domestics under the wage and hour law for the first time and repeals overtime pay exemptions now in effect in several industries.

It also tightens present law on child labor on farms and extends the scope of the law aimed at discrimination against elderly persons.

For 36 million workers covered under the 1966 minimum wage law, the schedule calls for an increase to $2 by May 1, $2.10 by Jan. 1, 1975, and $2.30 by Jan. 1, 1976.

For some 19 million workers, mostly retail and service employes covered under the new bill the schedule calls for $1.90 on May 1; $2 on Jan. 1, 1975; $2.20 on Jan. 1, 1976; and $2.30 by Jan. 1, 1977.

For 750,000 farm workers, who now have a wage floor of $1.30 an hour, the minimum wage would go to $1.60 on May 1; $1.80 on Jan. 1, 1975; $2 on Jan. 1, 1976; $2.20 on Jan. 1, 1977 and $2.30 on Jan. 1, 1978.

The new bill extends coverage under the minimum wage law to five million federal, state and local employes; one million domestics; 600,000 additional retail store employes; 120,000 additional service industry workers; and 25,000 additional farm workers.

WHAT No-FAULT
INSURANCE MAY MEAN TO YOU

The dollar figures below represent the estimated amount that citizens may save in personal injury automobile insurance premiums if their states enact no-fault insurance plans in compliance with the national standards set forth in the National No-Fault Motor Vehicle Insurance Act (S.354) now being considered by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The percentage figures represent the per cent of reduction in insurance premiums in each state. It is assumed that the plan enacted would provide unlimited medical, hospital and rehabilitation benefits, up to $15,000 of wage loss protection, up to one year of loss of services protection, and up to $5,000 of survivor's loss protection.

SCHOOL BOARD
ELECTIONS

School board elections are important. They determine who will administer the educational systems of our communities. The members of the boards are public servants in the finest sense, going about their duties that determine in the long run the physical status of the school systems and the quality of classroom instruction. The future of the nation rests with our youth and we can feel security in that future only if we have properly prepared those leaders and citizens of tomorrow.

Dallas had a school board election this week. Only 21, 897 persons, being five percent of the registered voters, turned out to vote. Only five percent were concerned enough about the quality of education of our children to vote while every parent and taxpayer must live with the results! This, to say the least, was a disheartening showing. If education and the democratic processes are to work, those whose futures, lives and liberties are at stake must take part.

For all too long now, the federal courts have been dictating aspects of our public school system. Through their decisions, parents have been forced to bus children across town. The House of Representatives in Washington has taken a step toward ending this wrong and taking the courts out of school administration. We cannot look to the House to cure all of our school problems. Those affected must take the initiative locally and the way to start is to participate in all community affairs, become informed and vote in every election. Those who are too apathetic to do this deserve what they get. HLH

The Missouri State Highway Patrol reported today that Holy Week, the eight day period from Palm Sunday through Easter Sunday, has been a tragic time on Missouri highways in the past.

Patrol records show that a total of 168 people have died in Missouri traffic accidents over the past five years during Holy Week. Last year, 39 traffic deaths were recorded in the State during that particular period. There were two particularly tragic days during the last Holy Week. Nine persons lost their lives in vehicular mishaps on Palm Sunday and another nine traffic deaths were reported in the State on the following Thursday.

Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, urged both drivers and pedestrians to be extra cautious during Holy Week. He reminded drivers to watch for pedestrians who may be walking to special church services. Pedestrians were urged to cross streets only at corners or crosswalks.

"Many people will be traveling to visit families and friends during the Easter Sunday weekend," Smith stated. "That will mean heavy traffic on Missouri highways. It is imperative that motorists use extra caution through this period and accept their moral responsibility.

"The Easter Holy Week traffic death toll can be held to a minimum," the Cononel concluded, "if motorists obey all traffic laws, stay alert and use common sense."

NEW SURVEY
RELEASED ON
EMPLOYEE CONDUCT
BY RESEARCH GROUP

Employers today are making a greater effort to help employees improve their performance before the boss is forced to fire them.

This was revealed in a recent survey of personnel management executives by The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., Washington, D. C.

Counseling and other non-punitive procedures are replacing more and more the hard-nosed disciplinary action of the past, the survey indicates.

In the past five years 56 per cent of those companies participating in the survey made changes in their formal rules. These were in the areas of drug abuse, absenteeism, safety, dress codes, and wage garnishments. Other changes include the elimination of suspension or layoff as a disciplinary procedure.

Although 85 per cent of those who responded replied that their rules for employee conduct are formalized and in writing, only 40 per cent said they specified exact penalties for infractions.

Discharge for the first offense is the most severe penalty and applies in cases of theft in 90 per cent of the companies indicating penalties; for falsifying an employment application in 88 per cent; for possession of narcotics in 70 per cent; for possession of firearms or other weapons in 63 per cent; for willful damage to company property in 62 per cent; for falsifying work records in 58 per cent; and for fighting on the job in 54 per cent.

For other offenses, pre-disciplinary counseling, procedures are followed in 85 per cent of the companies. Formal complaint or grievance procedures for appealing disciplinary action are found in 83 per cent of the firms.

The complete Forum survey report, "Employee Conduct and Discipline," is available from The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., 1231 25th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20037 at $5.00 per copy.

"Until the day arrives when a woman may operate a steam shovel, lay bricks, run a major corporation, umpire a baseball game or captain a ship if she chooses, I will not consider our job done," says Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan.

Pledging his commitment to "the fullest utilization of women's talents and potentials," he has promised to use all resources to achieve that goal. To assist in opening new opportunities for women, Secretary Brennan established a Secretary's Advisory Committee on Women. It is composed of 16 women and two men representing every race and class in the country.

The number of women entering programs traditionally dominated by men is growing rapidly. For example, Eileen Jobb and Roberta Lord of Pullman, Washington, are the first women to be apprenticed painters in their state. After completing a three - year program, they can expect to earn as much as $7.50 an hour as journeymen painters.

Four women in Baton Rouge, La., have become the first to enter Exxon Corporation's instrument technician apprentice program, and the Boeing Company in Seattle, Wa., has signed its first woman apprentice machinst.

Other "first" for women apprenticeships include the first female brick layers apprentice in Beaumonth, Tx., in Maryland, the first drywall mechanic; in North Carolina, a female apprentice electrician; in New Hampshire, a dental lab technician; in Boulder, Co., a plumber, and in Spokane, Wa., the first woman roofer apprentice.

"We have been too long," says Secretary Brennan, "in recognizing that many of this nation's women prefer a working career to marriage." He also noted that many women combine marriage and a career by choice, or are forced by circumstances to support dependents."

A slick promoter went into the pro shop down at the local golf course, followed by a gorilla with its knuckles dragging on the ground. "I'll bet you ten dollars a hole that my ape can beat you in a round," the promoter said when he confronted the course pro and instructor

"You're on," replied the pro, and they closed the shop and headed for the first tee.

The first hole was a tough one, a 545- yard uphill par five. The pro teed off first, and got a great drive, almost 300 yards straight up the middle. But then the ape stepped up, and without even a practice swing, smacked it almost out of sight, where it came to rest four inches from the cup.

Somewhat shaken, the pro shot to the green in two more, and three- putted for a bogey six. He conceded the gimmie putt to the ape, and they moved to the next hole, a 447-yard par four.

The ape stepped to the tee, and (crack) shot the ball to the green, a scant two inches from the pin. The pro came up, sliced about 220 yards into the rough on the right, and reached for his checkbook in defeat.

On the way back to the clubhouse, the pro asked the promoter in curiosity: "by the way, how does your ape putt?"

"Oh, about the same as he drives ... about 500 yards."

TECHNOLOGY
THE TOOL

Technology and social progress are inseparable. Promoting acceptance of this fact has become a major concern of leading government, business and scientific spokesmen. One of the most outstanding of these spokesmen has been Mr. Willard F. Rockwell, Jr., chief executive officer of North American Rockwell Corporation. The company has been a leader in aerospace and commercial manufacturing and in pushing research and development that utilizes space discoveries for the benefit of mankind.

In a recent Address, Mr. Rockwell pointed out that a fusion of engineering and the social sciences is mandatory if this country is to utilize available technical resources to solve its social problems. He told a meeting of industrial engineers that engineering must be "socially- relevant" not only to solve national problems, but also to attract talented young people into engineering. The North American Rockwell official added that the nation's teachers are to be commended for encouraging the youth of today to get involved in engineering and scientific projects, "and we're going to continue to need their help in sparking the interest of potential engineering students. We're going to continue to look to them to portray our profession for what it truly is -- a bridge for putting to use, for the benefit of all mankind, the total knowledge of the world.

Directing his remarks to the most skeptical antitechnologists, Mr. Rockwell recalled the words of Dr. Phillip Handler who said: "Without science and technology there can be no cleaning up of our cities, no progress in mass transportation, no salvage of our once beautiful landscape, and no control of overpopulation. Those who scoff at technological solutions have no alternative solutions."

"MR. FBI"

With the passing of J. Edgar Hoover, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, America lost a genuine spokesman for law and order and an undeviating supporter of great principles. Following are a few remarks that reveal the intellectual stature and the integrity of a great American: On rioting, Mr. Hoover said, "There is nothing in the First Amendment which guarantees people the right to riot and plunder as a means of dissent." On young criminals, he said, "I have been called an advocate of a "get tough' policy with respect to young criminals. I do not deny the charge ... Frankly, I am digusted by the misguided sentimentalists who want to pamper and excuse teen-age thugs." On a national police force, "I vigorously oppose a national police system in the United States ... A national force is a tool of tyranny." On permissiveness, he had this to say, "An attitude of permissiveness is becoming more and more evident in our society today, leading to the progressive relaxing and discarding of all forms of restraint and discipline. This attitude has actually been fostered and, in effect, promoted by too many educators, sociologists, clergymen, public officials and parents."

If Mr. Hoover's words sound out of date, they do so for the reason that today's standards of conduct are lower than those he represented and upheld for nearly 50 years as "Mr. FBI".

It is at the eastern edge of the Rockies where the elevations range from 6,500 to 8,150 feet. The land contains good forest cover and an abundant food supply, making it a favorite habitat of deer, bear, turkey and elk

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Ford's Taxes

WASHINGTON -- A confidential audit of Vice President Gerald Ford's taxes proves that not all politicians are tax cheats.

Both the Internal Revenue Service and the Joint Congressional Taxation Committee, which investigated President Nixon's taxes, also audited Ford's returns before he was confirmed as Vice President.

The President is now stuck with a bill for $476,431 in back taxes after the IRS disallowed several dubious deductions. The Vice President, in contrast, merely had to make a few minor adjustments.

The confidential Ford audit, which we have obtained, portrays an inherently honest man who believes he should bear his fair share of the tax burden.

Ford's returns show a total income of $224,364.10 for the first three years of the 1970s. He paid $75,111.44 or about a third of his income, in federal taxes. An additional $6,261.42 was paid to Michigan in state taxes.

Over the same three- year period, President Nixon reported a total income of $794,104.85 yet paid only $5,969.01 in federal taxes. This was less than one per cent of his income. He paid absolutely nothing in state taxes, despite the fact that he maintains residences in both California and Florida.

Tax agents carefully investigated two accounts which Ford used to pay political bills. Declares the confidential audit: "Numerous items were considered to be taxable before receiving Mr. Ford's diary and the fact that we were unable to trace trips to certain locations at certain times of the year....After receiving the diaries...all of the plane travel tickets and cash advances were accepted as legitimate political expenditures."

This compares to the $27,015 that the joint committee claimed President Nixon owes the government for travel expenses he couldn't justify.

The IRS disallowed an $871.44 deduction that Ford took for special clothing he had purchased for the 1972 Republican convention. The joint committee had found this to be a legitimate deduction. But the IRS ruled the suits were not "unique or distinctive" in character and, therefore, leveled a "tax deficiency" of $435.77 against Ford.

Although he was advised he could challenge this, he insisted upon giving the government the benefit of any doubt and ordered his accountant to write the IRS a check.

The tax agents also found that Ford had "overlooked" $1,167 which was billed to his political account but actually had been spent for a family trip to their condominium in the Vail, Colo., ski country. Ford thought he had reimbursed the political account, but immediately ordered the necessary payment when he learned otherwise.

"The analysis of the diaries resulted in several questions....," states the audit. "In all cases, the items were found to be correct." The Vice President, in other words, kept scrupulously honest tax records.

The famous date of July 25, 1969, which is at the heart of President Nixon's improper deduction for papers donated to the National Archives, also turned up in the investigation of Ford's taxes.

The tax sleuths checked the depreciation that Ford had claimed on his Vail, Colo., condominium. They "felt that an issue should be raised as to the use of 200 per cent depreciation....The cutoff date for use of 200 per cent depreciation for this type of property was 7/25/69.

"The records presented to us," declares the document, "substantiated the fact that the purchase contract was signed and an initial deposit was made on 6/25/69 (which) supported the use of both 200 per cent declining balance depreciation and additional first year depreciation." In short, the transaction was entirely proper.

Like Nixon, the Vice President also had a problem with "missing" documents. Some deposit slips for one of Ford's accounts couldn't be found.

The IRS "requested these and received some of them, but were told that the balance of the missing deposit slips could not be found. However, with the use of the diary and Mr. Ford's and Mr. Buchen's (a former Ford law partner) assistance, most of the unidentified deposits were explained."

The Ford tax summary shows he contributed a total of $6,342.22 to charity. All the deductions were allowed after careful scrutiny.

A thorough investigation of his checking accounts, particularly checks made out to cash, turned up "nothing significant." The confidential audit mentions that Ford was "surprised himself to know that he can go through a week spending $5 or less because of numerous meetings and lunches paid by others, particularly during the campaign season."

Asked about his bills at the House restaurant for his own lunch, Ford told the investigators that "the cost of his usual lunch of cottage cheese and unsweetened grapefruit juice is very nominal."

White House figures show President Nixon's net worth more than tripled from $307,141 in 1969 to $988,522 in 1973. Over the same time span, Ford's worth jumped from $130,526 to $179,751- about a 35 per cent increase.

In 1970, Ford had an income of $91,322.11. He forked over $35,121.09 in federal taxes and $1,724.99 in state taxes. Compared with the President, Ford surrendered nearly 50 times more in tax payments on an income of two- thirds less.

A year later, his income totalled $68,114.58. He paid federal taxes of $20,390.53 and state taxes of $2,273.71. Although his income was only about one- fourth the President's, Ford paid about 25 times more taxes.

Again in 1972, he had a $64,927.41 income and paid $19,599.82 federal taxes and $2,262.72 state taxes. He made about a fourth as much as Nixon but paid approximately five times more taxes.

In sum, the Vice President's tax returns reveal him as an honest man, who has never connived to seek private gain from his public position. The story is a good tonic for a scandal- weary public.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Grapes of Wrath:
Chavez, Meany, the 'Movement,' the Church Set For New Global Use of Boycott Weapon

WASHINGTON -- Charismatic, tireless, restless Cesar Chavez has only one table grape- gathering contract left. But in the field he has a powerful majority of two-- almost all of the church and now all of George Meany.

There have been some off- the- record meetings with men of the pulpit and men of labor power, and sooner than later there will be a globe- sweeping multinational boycott of Western table grapes and lettuce growers who refuse to switch their allegiance and contracts from the massive Teamsters brotherhood to the tiny United Farm Workers.

At this moment the odds that the rest of the American labor movement will call for such a boycott are 100 to 1. That is, if Cesar calms down and ceases harassing some California distillers who make wines from grapes.

"When we get rolling on this, it won't be a piece- of- paper boycott," said an intimate colleague of Meany's, privy to what has been developing in the eight- floor inner sanctum of the AFL-CIO veteran president. "It will be the same sort of operation as in Farah and during the original table grapes fight of the late '60s."

The war against the Teamsters will be fought on the sidewalks and waterfronts of the world's big cities-- and not on the hot roads and fields of produce ranch domain.

There will be pickets in Coachella soon, of course. But the sites of conflict will be in front of supermarkets and inside them. Not a physical struggle. Not the crazies, the hippies, the overenthusiastic collegiates and the dedicated nuns and priests moving at will. But a centralized, coordinated "federated" strike directed by Meany's skilled strategist, the Seafarers' Paul Hall and the knowledgeable retail clerks' leaders. The contest will develop from the inside out. It may not really matter for a while that some 35,000 new Teamsters members are harvesting in the Coachellas of the West.

It will not matter that Chavez has but a few thousand members in his legions. What will matter is the impact of "the boycott," not Cesar's "huelga" (the strike), on the reputation of a label. For this will be a product boycott. Look at what happened to the Texas- based Farah pants manufacturing company when "the movement" rallied to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (men's garments) directed by the ACWA's "young" leaders, Jack Sheinkman and Murray Finley. They are the new breed. The former, who is secretary- treasurer, is in his late 40s and the latter, the president, just past 50.

The Farah boycott, steamed by Meany, raged in over 60 cities. And it rolled on to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Japan, Britain and Belgium. The movement put a full- time organizer into Scandinavia, one of Farah's best markets. And towards the end the firm was about to close its Belgium plant. The boycott's foreign operation was channeled through the International Textile Garment and Leather Workers Federation, headquartered in Brussels but with affiliates on every continent.

Reportedly, during the 20- month strike and boycott, the firm's annual sales dropped from $170 million to a projected $100 million in 1974.

That was a tough one for any industrialist to take. And it's far more than a matter of pickets, production and distribution. A corrosion seeps into the public image of the label. Slowly the public, without knowing really why, reacts to the "movement's" triphammer propaganda attacks. Slowly purchasing is polarized. Somehow the impressions spring through of good on one side, evil on the other.

Slowly, the movement's boycott becomes a worldwide cause- celebre. This developed during the traumatic table grapes boycott some years back. The movement pounded everything from the Pentagon to London's posh stores. Salespeople refused to sell. Dockworkers refused to unload.

Then it hits back home-- in the produce valleys. Danger of all this, of course, is that the public doesn't always swing back to the product and thousands of jobs as well as profits are lost.

But in the grape and lettuce fields, Cesar Chavez and his small union can go on forever-- if they have some money as well as the movement.

For a while Chavez got the money. Millions of dollars. Then his people misbehaved. Reports streamed into Meany's headquarters that the hyperthyroid pickets were invading stores, roughing up people and urging illegal secondary boycotts of whole supermarkets, shopping centers and food chains.

In Canada, the UFW hit the Dominion Stores, a chain of supermarkets. With Canadian workers behind him, Chavez ordered picketing until the chain took all the boycotted table grapes and lettuce off all their shelves. Hundreds demonstrated against the "whole" store.

And, in Salinas, Calif., when a judge ordered Chavez to end mass picketing against California liquor stores selling Gallo wine (made by AFL- CIO distillers) which the UFW nonetheless was boycotting, Chavez called this "outrageous" and ordered intensified picketing.

All this angered Meany and his Executive Council colleagues. And word went out there would be no boycott. No more money. One leader said, "It was like a new toy to those Chavez people."

Then came more conferences. And Cesar promised to bring his people in line and go only for a product, not storewide boycotts.

Cesar was told that when he delivered discipline, there would be delivered to him the new boycott-- round the world, Farah- style. Watch for it.

Senate to begin debate on campaign reform bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amid charges from the governor's office and some Republican senators that the Senate Democratic leadership is attempting to weaken a strong campaign reform bill passed by the House, senators are expected to begin debate on the measure this week.

Bond says the Senate leadership is attempting "to pull back from reform" by rewriting the House-passed measure.

The Senate Election Committee passed out the unscathed House bill last Thursday after it became apparent that Republican members would seek a delay to study a substitute bill offered by committee chairman Sen. Franklin Payne, D-St. Louis, but thought to have been drafted by other senators. Payne would not reveal the source of the bill.

Major changes in the substitute distributed by Payne include a hike in the limit under which a campaign contributor can remain anonymous. It provides that the identities of contributors of $200 or less need not be reported. The House version established a $25 limit.

Also changed in the Senate substitute is the defination of a candidate. Under the House measure contributions would have to be reported from the date the first contribution is received or initial expense incurred.

The Senate substitute requires reporting only after an individual has announced candidacy or filed for office.

Under the House bill the commission enforcing provisions of the measure would be appointed by the governor with consent of the Senate from a list submitted by the Supreme Court.

The Senate substitute would create a seven-member commission with two commission members appointed by each political party and two by the Supreme Court. The secretary of state, an elected official, would head the commission.

The Senate substitute doubles the permitted amount to be spent by a candidate in a statewide election to about $600,000.

Ann Landers

'Hooked' smoker kicks habit; says anyone can

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters in your column about smokers, how they hate the habit and wish they could get unhooked, but never have you printed a letter with a solution. This may be your first.

I started to smoke when I was 17. I was on my own in the business world and thought if I smoked I'd look older. For a few years it was eight or ten cigarets a day, usually when I was with someone I wanted to impress. Gradually I realized I was smoking more than I had intended. I found myself lighting a cigaret every time I had a cup of coffee, or whenever I reached for a telephone. By the time I was 21, I was hooked.

I coughed, hacked, and burned holes in my best suits. I even burned a hole in the dining room table. I must say my wife was wonderful. She never nagged me to quit because she was smart enough to know that each person must make that decision himself.

Last November some friends from Reno came to spend the weekend. Edna mentioned something about an aquaintance who had been a nicotine freak for 38 years, how she had gone to a clinic in California, checked in on Sunday and left the following Friday-- total cost, $375. Edna said that woman was a chain-smoker, thoroughly addicted, but five days at "that place" produced the miracle. I sent for the literature at once.

On December 2, I left for St. Helena's Hospital and Health Center. When I arrived at the gate I was smoking. Then I saw a sign, "You are entering a non- smoking area. Deposit smoking materials here." I put out my cigaret and tossed it (along with the rest of the pack) into the trash can provided for that purpose.

The next five days were rough, but they were fascinating, too. I met men and women from all over the country. We exercised vigorously, ate vegetarian meals, drank countless glasses of fruit juice (no liquor allowed), listened to lectures, watched films, and took steam and sauna baths to ease the withdrawal symptoms. Then there was "Frank," that horrible- looking, cancer-ridden lung floating in a bottle of alcohol. He managed to turn up in the dining room, the lecture hall, wherever I happened to be.

Although St. Helena's is run by the Seventh Day Adventists, no one tried to sell us religion. I was impressed by the dedication and the quiet dignity of the personnel. They truly believe in what they are doing but they apply no pressure to persuade the guests that theirs is the only way.

On Friday, December 7, I walked out of St. Helena's feeling very good about myself. "Keep in touch," said Dr. Herschel Lamp, the director. "We want to know how you get along."

From that day to this I haven't had a cigaret. Easy? Of course not! There are times when the craving is so strong I must excuse myself from a meeting and go wash my face with cold water. (They taught us to do this during moments of crisis.) But I have kicked the habit, Honey, and if I can do it, anyone can.

Please print this letter and tell the tobacco junkies who want to quit where to write for information. Thank you.-- Free At Last

Book Review

MAN IN THE TRAP
by Elsworth F. Baker, M.D.
(Discus 18309/$1.95
384pp.)

Wilhelm Reich's controversial theory of human sexuality- that it is based on the movement or blocking of sexual energy- is explained by Dr. Elsworth Baker, the foremost living exponent of Reighian theory, in his book MAN IN THE TRAP, now published in a Discus edition paperback. Dr. Baker, who has spent 20 years as a medical orgonomist, 11 of them in close association with Reich, begins by describing the character types which result from specific blocking of sexual energy at various stages of emotional development. Drawing upon case histories, Dr. Baker then discusses the procedures used in orgonomic therapy to treat, and ultimately remove, blocking.

Reich's theories of sexuality and society, which earned him ostracism and imprisonment in his own lifetime, have gained a new recognition in recent years. In his reasoned and accessible account, Dr. Baker not only presents the specifics of Reichian theory, but considers its explosive implications, among them the failure of society to deal with sexuality in children and adolescents. Dr. Baker comments "Reich has told us much that is true about man, if we can listen and remain objective — even though we wish to run from it."

Aaron faces Downing

ATLANTA (AP)— Henry Aaron, taking in stride the controversy surrounding his quest for baseball immortality, returns to his home park tonight where playing orders from Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn won't be needed.

"Yeah, that's definite I'm going to play tomorrow," the 40- year- old Atlanta Braves' slugger said Sunday at the end of a stormy five- day stay in Cincinnati.

Aaron renews his bid to become the game's all- time home run king in Atlanta Stadium tonight in the Braves' home opener of 1974- against the Los Angeles Dodgers and left-handed pitcher Al Downing.

The soft- spoken star, playing under a direct order from Kuhn, went hitless in three trips Sunday in Atlanta's 5- 3 victory over Cincinnati, leaving him tied with the legendary Babe Ruth at 714 lifetime home runs.

A sellout crowd of 52,870 and a massive national television NBC audience is expected to watch the game and a special 30- minute program in tribute to Aaron.

''We obeyed the commissioner,'' Aaron told a swarm of sports writers in the Brave clubhouse at Cincinnati Sunday. "I hope everybody's happy. Yes, I'm happy.

"I just hope tomorrow night it all will be over with and things can get back to normal," he said. "It's been quite a week here."

Aaron was called out on strikes in his first two appearances Sunday and then grounded out to third before leaving the game in the middle of the seventh inning.

Spurred by the prolonged controversy over his playing status, Aaron was asked if he had tried to hit a home run.

"I played the game and did the best I could," he said. "It's not easy to walk up there and hit one out. I felt good but I wasn't guessing right. I was looking for a fast ball and the pitcher Clay Kirby threw me all sliders."

The turmoil, which began before spring training when the Braves announced Aaron would not play in Cincinnati, built to the boiling point Saturday after Manager Eddie Matthews announced Aaron would sit out the final two games of the series.

Aaron watched Saturday's nationally televised game from the dugout. The Reds beat the Braves 7- 5. Afterward came word that Kuhn wished to talk with Matthews.

Turkey tags available

JEFFERSON CITY — Tags for the 1974 Missouri turkey season are available now, according to the Department of Conservation.

Resident tags are $7.80 each, non-resident $30.30. The season will run April 22-May 4, with one visibly bearded bird legal. All turkeys must be tagged, either with a permit tag or, in the case of farmers hunting on the land where they live, a homemade tag, and all birds must be checked with head and plumage intact in the county where taken or an adjoining county between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. central daylight time.

The only changes in this season are that all times are daylight. Shooting hours are 6 a.m. to 1 p.m.

All that is needed to hunt turkeys is a tag-- hunters don't need a small game or other permit in addition.

You can't improve on the original.

Missouri deer leads Nation

JEFFERSON CITY-- If Missouri isn't the big deer capital of the United States, it'll do till a better one comes along.

For the second straight competition, a Missouri white- tailed deer rack leads the national Boone and Crockett North American Big Game list.

Larry Gibson, Moberly, took a deer with a typical rack in 1971 not more than 200 yards behind his house which has scored 205 Boone and Crockett points-- tops in the nation for the past three seasons and second best ever recorded.

The Boone and Crockett competition is held every three years. In the last summary, a deer taken in 1969 by Jeff Brunk, Revere, then a student at Kirksville State College, scored 199- 4/8 points to lead the nation.

The latest award was made in Atlanta, Ga., March 24. Dean Murphy, assistant Game Division chief for the Department of Conservation, accepted the award for Gibson.

Murphy is co- founder of the Show- Me Big Bucks Club which honors Missouri hunters who take trophy racks. The club is one of the nation's most active.

"Maybe we do a better job of uncovering trophy deer than other states," Murphy says. "Or maybe we just have deer with bigger racks."

Ohio has had a similar club since 1958 and its record typical rack scores only 187 6/8. Missouri has a number of racks larger than that.

In fact, but for an error, Missouri would have had the top two racks at Atlanta.

Young Robin Berhorst, Memphis, took a deer, the first he'd ever gotten, in 1972 which Murphy scored at 187- 2/8.

The runner- up rack to Gibson's was reported to Boone and Crockett officials as 190- plus, but when Boone and Crockett called it in and scored it, it proved to be only 172- 1/8-- well below Berhorst's total.

Murphy scored conservatively and, in fact, Boone and Crockett raised Gibson's total. For that matter, a deer taken in 1972 by Larry Ogle of Richland scored 186- 2/8, also bigger than the Boone and Crockett runner- up.

Gibson's deer almost came to grief before it was scored by the Boone and Crockett team.

Trophy rack

Larry Gibson, Moberly, holds the rack of the deer which has been placed by the Boone and Crockett Club second on the all-time national list of typical rack white- tailed deer. Gibson's trophy deer scored tops in the nation for the Boone and Crockett reporting period of the last three years -- second straight time a Missouri deer has led the nation.

Court declines to rule on Lt. Governor's power

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court ruled today that Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps must obey all rules of the Senate while he is acting as presiding officer.

The high court upheld two Senate rules as constitutional and said it would not delineate the lieutenant governor's powers as had been requested. The rules involved assigning bills to committee and ruling on points of order.

These jobs are up to whoever the Senate decides shall conduct them, the decision held.

Last Nov. 30, the Supreme Court held that Phelps has the constitutional right to preside over the Senate.

At present, the Senate president pro tem, Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, rules on points of order and refers bills to committee. The court held this to be constitutional.

In deciding not to rule on other duties of the lieutenant governor, the decision said the court will not reach out and undertake to decide constitutional questions not at issue in the court case.

The unanimous decision means that all Phelps can do is preside over the Senate break tie votes.

Phelps was ordered removed from the Senate last year when he refused to give up the chair to Cason on the last day of the session. The court ruled that Phelps could not be removed as presiding officer.

In the most serious flareup of the controversy this session, the Senate admonished Phelps, by a vote, when they ordered him to recognize a particular senator.

Israeli jet fighter shot down by Syria

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syria shot down an Israeli jet fighter over the Golan Heights front today and the two pilots who bailed out were captured in Lebanon, the Lebanese Defense Ministry said.

Israel confirmed that the plane went down, but denied that it was hit by a missile. The Tel Aviv command said the jet caught fire, apparently as a result of a technical fault.

It was the first Israeli plan lost over the Golan front since the October war.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said the plane, an F4 Phantom, crashed in the Arkoub region near the village of Chebba, only six miles north of the Israeli border. The village is about 39 miles south of Beirut.

A Lebanese spokesman said the two pilots were picked up near the village of Kraibe, about three miles west of Chebba. He said they were safe but would not say whether they were being held.

Lebanon holds two other Israeli Phantom pilots captured during the October war when they bailed out over Lebanon.

Syria said the plane was brought down "when an enemy formation penetrated our air space over Mt. Hermon." It also said its forces battled all night with Israeli troops trying to overrun Syrian positions on Mt. Hermon, but Israel denied this.

Artillery and tank fire blazed along the 40-mile Golan front for the 28th straight day.

Israel admitted using warplanes for the first time since the October war on Saturday. It said air strikes were ordered after the Syrians attacked an Israeli position on Mt. Hermon.

The Tel Aviv command said shooting erupted again today across the Golan truce line, and Israel's military command announced the first capture of a Syrian soldier since the October war.

An Israeli spokesman said Syrian guns and tank cannon resumed firing after sunrise, and artillery duels spread along the 40-mile front. He said no Israeli casualties were reported.

Israel claims it holds 387 Syrian prisoners of war and wants to exchange them for 65 Israelis held in Syria.

R•A•F ENERGY DIET
WITH VITAMIN "E" & "C"
COMBO. SUPPLEMENT

LOS ANGELES (Special) The R•A•F diet has been found to give excellent results in weight loss when followed according to its simple instructions, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with reports of weight loss while still eating most of the foods you are used to. Those who follow the simple diet report a loss of weight without exercise or starvation. Best of all you can still eat regular foods such as steak, chicken, chops, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon and eggs and still lose unwanted weight. The Vitamin "E" & "C" Tabs used with the diet plan supply you with the M.D.R. which otherwise may be lost when following the R•A•F Diet Plan.

The use of the new Vitamin "E" & "C" Tabs and foods prescribed in the plan will through natural action, act to help your body keep fit and not suffer from hunger pangs. This is a solid, common sense diet plan — 100% safe — no unpleasant side effects.

A study of 900 obese persons confirms the value of the low carbohydrate diet and frequent small meals. Despite organized medicines insistence that calories alone are the key to losing weight, the research clearly shows that the source of the calories is equally important. Carbohydrate, says the medical researcher, is the "crucial determinant" regulating the degree of obesity. Supplementing the low carbohydrate diet with polyunsaturated fat (vegetable oil) increases the oxidation of stored fat (palmitate) by 20 to 25% — and that, says the paper, is the way to diminish excess weight.°

Nixon signs wage bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today signed a bill that will bring the minimum wage to $2.30 an hour for millions of American workers by Jan. 1, 1978.

Nixon signed the measure at his desk in the Oval Office, with Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan seated alongside.

In a White House statement, Nixon said, "Although I have some reservations about portions of this legislation, its basic purpose — to increase the minimum wage for working men and women of this country — deserves the support of all Americans."

The new law expands minimum wage coverage to an additional seven million workers. Some 49.4 million workers already were covered by minimum wage legislation.

Nixon vetoed a similar minimum wage bill last year.

Nixon objected to the 1973 minimum wage bill as being inflationary and because it did not include a youth differential permitting a lower rate for teenagers.

The 1974 bill, approved by Congress last month, contains only minor changes from the one Nixon vetoed.

It does not contain a youth differential but it does liberalize the present law slightly on employment of students, permitting them to work part-time — not more than 20 hours a week — at 85 per cent of the regular wage floor.

The latest bill would bring domestics under the wage and hour law for the first time and repeals overtime pay exemptions now in effect in several industries.

It also tightens present law on child labor on farms and extends the scope of the law aimed at discrimination against elderly persons.

For 36 million workers covered under the 1966 minimum wage law, the schedule calls for an increase to $2 by May 1, $2.10 by Jan. 1, 1975, and $2.30 by Jan. 1, 1976.

For some 19 million workers, mostly retail and service employes covered under the new bill the schedule calls for $1.90 on May 1; $2 on Jan. 1, 1975; $2.20 on Jan. 1, 1976; and $2.30 by Jan. 1, 1977.

For 750,000 farm workers, who now have a wage floor of $1.30 an hour, the minimum wage would go to $1.60 on May 1; $1.80 on Jan. 1, 1975; $2 on Jan. 1, 1976; $2.20 on Jan. 1, 1977 and $2.30 on Jan. 1, 1978.

The new bill extends coverage under the minimum wage law to five million federal, state and local employes; one million domestics; 600,000 additional retail store employes; 120,000 additional service industry workers; and 25,000 additional farm workers.

Mississippi woman killed in accident

A Mississippi woman was killed and four persons were injured in four area traffic accidents over the weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Carline Hollier, 47, of Hazelwood, Miss., a passenger in a tractor- trailer driven by Robert Marvin Foster, 59, of Hazelwood, died from injuries received at 4:30 p.m. Sunday when the truck jackknifed on a curve and overturned down a levee embankment in Mississippi County on Highway 60 one mile west of the Mississippi River Bridge. The body was taken to Johnson- Lambert Funeral Home in Cairo, Ill.

Foster received fractured ribs and was taken to PADCO Community Hospital in Cairo.

A bicycle rider, Jeffrey Jack Rogers, 12, of Dexter, was seriously injured at 4:40 p.m. Saturday when his bike was struck by a pickup driven by Edward Redman, 30, of Benton on Route WW four miles west of Dudley.

The patrol said the pickup struck the bike from behind when the boy cut across in front of the truck.

The boy was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital.

A motorcycle- truck accident at 7 p.m. Saturday on Interstate 55 two miles south of Cape Girardeau resulted in serious injuries to the motorcycle driver, Michael Richard Nelson, 18, of Webster Groves.

The accident occurred when a pickup driven by Edward England, 37, of Lonedell came over a hill and struck the motorcycle from behind. The patrol said Nelson was having motor trouble and was driving at a low rate of speed when the accident happened.

He was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Denzil Poyner, 33, of Catron was seriously injured at 8 p.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car on a curve and overturned on Route D one- fourth mile west of Lilbourn.

Poyner was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

2 cars stolen in Scott found in Kentucky

An automobile belonging to Richard McIntosh of Benton, apparently stolen March 31 by an escapee from the Scott County jail in Benton was recovered Saturday in Dawson Springs, Ky. city police reported today.

The car is believed to have been taken by Franklin David McIntosh, no relation to the auto owner.

McIntosh escaped from jail March 31 while awaiting transport to the state prison to serve a five- year sentence following conviction on an armed robbery charge in connection with a 1973 robbery of the Quick Shop on South Main Street.

An automobile stolen Feb. 15 from the Goza-Harper Motor Co. lot in Sikeston was recovered Saturday in Barlow, Ky., police said today.

The car was reported in drivable condition except for a missing battery.

2 Sikeston men hurt

Two Sikeston residents were injured in a two-car accident at 5:26 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Salcedo Road and Davis Boulevard.

Steven A. Craig, 25, of 415 Coleman St. received a concussion and back sprain when the car he was driving west on Salcedo Road collided with a car driven by Charles Richard Dement, 45, of 819 Park Ave.

A passenger in Craig's car, Glenn Milligan, 26, of 1 Mobile Drive, received facial bruises. Both Craig and Milligan were treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital and released.

The accident apparently occurred when Dement drove his car from Davis Boulevard into the path of the Craig car.

Dement was arrested for careless and imprudent driving.

WHAT No-FAULT INSURANCE MAY MEAN TO YOU

The dollar figures below represent the estimated amount that citizens may save in personal injury automobile insurance premiums if their states enact no-fault insurance plans in compliance with the national standards set forth in the National No-Fault Motor Vehicle Insurance Act (S.354) now being considered by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The percentage figures represent the per cent of reduction in insurance premiums in each state. It is assumed that the plan enacted would provide unlimited medical, hospital and rehabilitation benefits, up to $15,000 of wage loss protection, up to one year of loss of services protection, and up to $5,000 of survivor's loss protection.

In 1903, it (The Daily Oklahoman) looked like a forlorn investment. However, there was a spirit of hope and ambition in the air. The population was young people, almost without exception. The Oklahoman was terribly inadequate as a newspaper, and I was ambitious to make it the biggest and best newspaper in the state. — Edward King Gaylord.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTIONS

School board elections are important. They determine who will administer the educational systems of our communities. The members of the boards are public servants in the finest sense, going about their duties that determine in the long run the physical status of the school systems and the quality of classroom instruction. The future of the nation rests with our youth and we can feel security in that future only if we have properly prepared those leaders and citizens of tomorrow.

Dallas had a school board election this week. Only 21, 897 persons, being five percent of the registered voters, turned out to vote. Only five percent were concerned enough about the quality of education of our children to vote while every parent and taxpayer must live with the results! This, to say the least, was a disheartening showing. If education and the democratic processes are to work, those whose futures, lives and liberties are at stake must take part.

For all too long now, the federal courts have been dictating aspects of our public school system. Through their decisions, parents have been forced to bus children across town. The House of Representatives in Washington has taken a step toward ending this wrong and taking the courts out of school administration. We cannot look to the House to cure all of our school problems. Those affected must take the initiative locally and the way to start is to participate in all community affairs, become informed and vote in every election. Those who are too apathetic to do this deserve what they get. HLH

The Missouri State Highway Patrol reported today that Holy Week, the eight day period from Palm Sunday through Easter Sunday, has been a tragic time on Missouri highways in the past.

Patrol records show that a total of 168 people have died in Missouri traffic accidents over the past five years during Holy Week. Last year, 39 traffic deaths were recorded in the State during that particular period. There were two particularly tragic days during the last Holy Week. Nine persons lost their lives in vehicular mishaps on Palm Sunday and another nine traffic deaths were reported in the State on the following Thursday.

Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, urged both drivers and pedestrians to be extra cautious during Holy Week. He reminded drivers to watch for pedestrians who may be walking to special church services. Pedestrians were urged to cross streets only at corners or crosswalks.

"Many people will be traveling to visit families and friends during the Easter Sunday weekend," Smith stated. "That will mean heavy traffic on Missouri highways. It is imperative that motorists use extra caution through this period and accept their moral responsibility.

"The Easter Holy Week traffic death toll can be held to a minimum," the Cononel concluded, "if motorists obey all traffic laws, stay alert and use common sense."

NEW SURVEY RELEASED ON EMPLOYEE CONDUCT BY RESEARCH GROUP

Employers today are making a greater effort to help employees improve their performance before the boss is forced to fire them.

This was revealed in a recent survey of personnel management executives by The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., Washington, D. C.

Counseling and other non-punitive procedures are replacing more and more the hard-nosed disciplinary action of the past, the survey indicates.

In the past five years 56 per cent of those companies participating in the survey made changes in their formal rules. These were in the areas of drug abuse, absenteeism, safety, dress codes, and wage garnishments. Other changes include the elimination of suspension or layoff as a disciplinary procedure.

Although 85 per cent of those who responded replied that their rules for employee conduct are formalized and in writing, only 40 per cent said they specified exact penalties for infractions.

Discharge for the first offense is the most severe penalty and applies in cases of theft in 90 per cent of the companies indicating penalties; for falsifying an employment application in 88 per cent; for possession of narcotics in 70 per cent; for possession of firearms or other weapons in 63 per cent; for willful damage to company property in 62 per cent; for falsifying work records in 58 per cent; and for fighting on the job in 54 per cent.

For other offenses, pre-disciplinary counseling, procedures are followed in 85 per cent of the companies. Formal complaint or grievance procedures for appealing disciplinary action are found in 83 per cent of the firms.

The complete Forum survey report, "Employee Conduct and Discipline," is available from The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., 1231 25th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20037 at $5.00 per copy.

"Until the day arrives when a woman may operate a steam shovel, lay bricks, run a major corporation, umpire a baseball game or captain a ship if she chooses, I will not consider our job done," says Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan.

Pledging his commitment to "the fullest utilization of women's talents and potentials," he has promised to use all resources to achieve that goal. To assist in opening new opportunities for women, Secretary Brennan established a Secretary's Advisory Committee on Women. It is composed of 16 women and two men representing every race and class in the country.

The number of women entering programs traditionally dominated by men is growing rapidly. For example, Eileen Jobb and Roberta Lord of Pullman, Washington, are the first women to be apprenticed painters in their state. After completing a three - year program, they can expect to earn as much as $7.50 an hour as journeymen painters.

Four women in Baton Rouge, La., have become the first to enter Exxon Corporation's instrument technician apprentice program, and the Boeing Company in Seattle, Wa., has signed its first woman apprentice machinst.

Other "first" for women apprenticeships include the first female brick layers apprentice in Beaumonth, Tx., in Maryland, the first drywall mechanic; in North Carolina, a female apprentice electrician; in New Hampshire, a dental lab technician; in Boulder, Co., a plumber, and in Spokane, Wa., the first woman roofer apprentice.

"We have been too long," says Secretary Brennan, "in recognizing that many of this nation's women prefer a working career to marriage." He also noted that many women combine marriage and a career by choice, or are forced by circumstances to support dependents."

A slick promoter went into the pro shop down at the local golf course, followed by a gorilla with its knuckles dragging on the ground. "I'll bet you ten dollars a hole that my ape can beat you in a round," the promoter said when he confronted the course pro and instructor

"You're on," replied the pro, and they closed the shop and headed for the first tee.

The first hole was a tough one, a 545- yard uphill par five. The pro teed off first, and got a great drive, almost 300 yards straight up the middle. But then the ape stepped up, and without even a practice swing, smacked it almost out of sight, where it came to rest four inches from the cup.

Somewhat shaken, the pro shot to the green in two more, and three- putted for a bogey six. He conceded the gimmie putt to the ape, and they moved to the next hole, a 447-yard par four.

The ape stepped to the tee, and (crack) shot the ball to the green, a scant two inches from the pin. The pro came up, sliced about 220 yards into the rough on the right, and reached for his checkbook in defeat.

On the way back to the clubhouse, the pro asked the promoter in curiosity: "by the way, how does your ape putt?"

"Oh, about the same as he drives ... about 500 yards."

TECHNOLOGY THE TOOL

Technology and social progress are inseparable. Promoting acceptance of this fact has become a major concern of leading government, business and scientific spokesmen. One of the most outstanding of these spokesmen has been Mr. Willard F. Rockwell, Jr., chief executive officer of North American Rockwell Corporation. The company has been a leader in aerospace and commercial manufacturing and in pushing research and development that utilizes space discoveries for the benefit of mankind.

In a recent Address, Mr. Rockwell pointed out that a fusion of engineering and the social sciences is mandatory if this country is to utilize available technical resources to solve its social problems. He told a meeting of industrial engineers that engineering must be "socially- relevant" not only to solve national problems, but also to attract talented young people into engineering. The North American Rockwell official added that the nation's teachers are to be commended for encouraging the youth of today to get involved in engineering and scientific projects, "and we're going to continue to need their help in sparking the interest of potential engineering students. We're going to continue to look to them to portray our profession for what it truly is -- a bridge for putting to use, for the benefit of all mankind, the total knowledge of the world.

Directing his remarks to the most skeptical antitechnologists, Mr. Rockwell recalled the words of Dr. Phillip Handler who said: "Without science and technology there can be no cleaning up of our cities, no progress in mass transportation, no salvage of our once beautiful landscape, and no control of overpopulation. Those who scoff at technological solutions have no alternative solutions."

"MR. FBI"

With the passing of J. Edgar Hoover, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, America lost a genuine spokesman for law and order and an undeviating supporter of great principles. Following are a few remarks that reveal the intellectual stature and the integrity of a great American: On rioting, Mr. Hoover said, "There is nothing in the First Amendment which guarantees people the right to riot and plunder as a means of dissent." On young criminals, he said, "I have been called an advocate of a "get tough' policy with respect to young criminals. I do not deny the charge ... Frankly, I am digusted by the misguided sentimentalists who want to pamper and excuse teen-age thugs." On a national police force, "I vigorously oppose a national police system in the United States ... A national force is a tool of tyranny." On permissiveness, he had this to say, "An attitude of permissiveness is becoming more and more evident in our society today, leading to the progressive relaxing and discarding of all forms of restraint and discipline. This attitude has actually been fostered and, in effect, promoted by too many educators, sociologists, clergymen, public officials and parents."

If Mr. Hoover's words sound out of date, they do so for the reason that today's standards of conduct are lower than those he represented and upheld for nearly 50 years as "Mr. FBI".

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Ford's Taxes

WASHINGTON -- A confidential audit of Vice President Gerald Ford's taxes proves that not all politicians are tax cheats.

Both the Internal Revenue Service and the Joint Congressional Taxation Committee, which investigated President Nixon's taxes, also audited Ford's returns before he was confirmed as Vice President.

The President is now stuck with a bill for $476,431 in back taxes after the IRS disallowed several dubious deductions. The Vice President, in contrast, merely had to make a few minor adjustments.

The confidential Ford audit, which we have obtained, portrays an inherently honest man who believes he should bear his fair share of the tax burden.

Ford's returns show a total income of $224,364.10 for the first three years of the 1970s. He paid $75,111.44 or about a third of his income, in federal taxes. An additional $6,261.42 was paid to Michigan in state taxes.

Over the same three- year period, President Nixon reported a total income of $794,104.85 yet paid only $5,969.01 in federal taxes. This was less than one per cent of his income. He paid absolutely nothing in state taxes, despite the fact that he maintains residences in both California and Florida.

Tax agents carefully investigated two accounts which Ford used to pay political bills. Declares the confidential audit: "Numerous items were considered to be taxable before receiving Mr. Ford's diary and the fact that we were unable to trace trips to certain locations at certain times of the year....After receiving the diaries...all of the plane travel tickets and cash advances were accepted as legitimate political expenditures."

This compares to the $27,015 that the joint committee claimed President Nixon owes the government for travel expenses he couldn't justify.

The IRS disallowed an $871.44 deduction that Ford took for special clothing he had purchased for the 1972 Republican convention. The joint committee had found this to be a legitimate deduction. But the IRS ruled the suits were not "unique or distinctive" in character and, therefore, leveled a "tax deficiency" of $435.77 against Ford.

Although he was advised he could challenge this, he insisted upon giving the government the benefit of any doubt and ordered his accountant to write the IRS a check.

The tax agents also found that Ford had "overlooked" $1,167 which was billed to his political account but actually had been spent for a family trip to their condominium in the Vail, Colo., ski country. Ford thought he had reimbursed the political account, but immediately ordered the necessary payment when he learned otherwise.

"The analysis of the diaries resulted in several questions....," states the audit. "In all cases, the items were found to be correct." The Vice President, in other words, kept scrupulously honest tax records.

The famous date of July 25, 1969, which is at the heart of President Nixon's improper deduction for papers donated to the National Archives, also turned up in the investigation of Ford's taxes.

The tax sleuths checked the depreciation that Ford had claimed on his Vail, Colo., condominium. They "felt that an issue should be raised as to the use of 200 per cent depreciation....The cutoff date for use of 200 per cent depreciation for this type of property was 7/25/69.

"The records presented to us," declares the document, "substantiated the fact that the purchase contract was signed and an initial deposit was made on 6/25/69 (which) supported the use of both 200 per cent declining balance depreciation and additional first year depreciation." In short, the transaction was entirely proper.

Like Nixon, the Vice President also had a problem with "missing" documents. Some deposit slips for one of Ford's accounts couldn't be found.

The IRS "requested these and received some of them, but were told that the balance of the missing deposit slips could not be found. However, with the use of the diary and Mr. Ford's and Mr. Buchen's (a former Ford law partner) assistance, most of the unidentified deposits were explained."

The Ford tax summary shows he contributed a total of $6,342.22 to charity. All the deductions were allowed after careful scrutiny.

A thorough investigation of his checking accounts, particularly checks made out to cash, turned up "nothing significant." The confidential audit mentions that Ford was "surprised himself to know that he can go through a week spending $5 or less because of numerous meetings and lunches paid by others, particularly during the campaign season."

Asked about his bills at the House restaurant for his own lunch, Ford told the investigators that "the cost of his usual lunch of cottage cheese and unsweetened grapefruit juice is very nominal."

White House figures show President Nixon's net worth more than tripled from $307,141 in 1969 to $988,522 in 1973. Over the same time span, Ford's worth jumped from $130,526 to $179,751- about a 35 per cent increase.

In 1970, Ford had an income of $91,322.11. He forked over $35,121.09 in federal taxes and $1,724.99 in state taxes. Compared with the President, Ford surrendered nearly 50 times more in tax payments on an income of two- thirds less.

A year later, his income totalled $68,114.58. He paid federal taxes of $20,390.53 and state taxes of $2,273.71. Although his income was only about one- fourth the President's, Ford paid about 25 times more taxes.

Again in 1972, he had a $64,927.41 income and paid $19,599.82 federal taxes and $2,262.72 state taxes. He made about a fourth as much as Nixon but paid approximately five times more taxes.

In sum, the Vice President's tax returns reveal him as an honest man, who has never connived to seek private gain from his public position. The story is a good tonic for a scandal- weary public.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Grapes of Wrath: Chavez, Meany, the 'Movement,' the Church Set For New Global Use of Boycott Weapon

WASHINGTON -- Charismatic, tireless, restless Cesar Chavez has only one table grape- gathering contract left. But in the field he has a powerful majority of two-- almost all of the church and now all of George Meany.

There have been some off- the- record meetings with men of the pulpit and men of labor power, and sooner than later there will be a globe- sweeping multinational boycott of Western table grapes and lettuce growers who refuse to switch their allegiance and contracts from the massive Teamsters brotherhood to the tiny United Farm Workers.

At this moment the odds that the rest of the American labor movement will call for such a boycott are 100 to 1. That is, if Cesar calms down and ceases harassing some California distillers who make wines from grapes.

"When we get rolling on this, it won't be a piece- of- paper boycott," said an intimate colleague of Meany's, privy to what has been developing in the eight- floor inner sanctum of the AFL-CIO's veteran president. "It will be the same sort of operation as in Farah and during the original table grapes fight of the late '60s."

The war against the Teamsters will be fought on the sidewalks and waterfronts of the world's big cities-- and not on the hot roads and fields of produce ranch domain.

There will be pickets in Coachella soon, of course. But the sites of conflict will be in front of supermarkets and inside them. Not a physical struggle. Not the crazies, the hippies, the overenthusiastic collegiates and the dedicated nuns and priests moving at will. But a centralized, coordinated "federated" strike directed by Meany's skilled strategist, the Seafarers' Paul Hall and the knowledgeable retail clerks' leaders. The contest will develop from the inside out. It may not really matter for a while that some 35,000 new Teamsters members are harvesting in the Coachellas of the West.

It will not matter that Chavez has but a few thousand members in his legions. What will matter is the impact of "the boycott," not Cesar's "huelga" (the strike), on the reputation of a label. For this will be a product boycott. Look at what happened to the Texas- based Farah pants manufacturing company when "the movement" rallied to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (men's garments) directed by the ACWA's "young" leaders, Jack Sheinkman and Murray Finley. They are the new breed. The former, who is secretary- treasurer, is in his late 40s and the latter, the president, just past 50.

The Farah boycott, steamed by Meany, raged in over 60 cities. And it rolled on to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Japan, Britain and Belgium. The movement put a full- time organizer into Scandinavia, one of Farah's best markets. And towards the end the firm was about to close its Belgium plant. The boycott's foreign operation was channeled through the International Textile Garment and Leather Workers Federation, headquartered in Brussels but with affiliates on every continent.

Reportedly, during the 20- month strike and boycott, the firm's annual sales dropped from $170 million to a projected $100 million in 1974.

That was a tough one for any industrialist to take. And it's far more than a matter of pickets, production and distribution. A corrosion seeps into the public image of the label. Slowly the public, without knowing really why, reacts to the "movement's" triphammer propaganda attacks. Slowly purchasing is polarized. Somehow the impressions spring through of good on one side, evil on the other.

Slowly, the movement's boycott becomes a worldwide cause- celebre. This developed during the traumatic table grapes boycott some years back. The movement pounded everything from the Pentagon to London's posh stores. Salespeople refused to sell. Dockworkers refused to unload.

Then it hits back home-- in the produce valleys. Danger of all this, of course, is that the public doesn't always swing back to the product and thousands of jobs as well as profits are lost.

But in the grape and lettuce fields, Cesar Chavez and his small union can go on forever-- if they have some money as well as the movement.

For a while Chavez got the money. Millions of dollars. Then his people misbehaved. Reports streamed into Meany's headquarters that the hyperthyroid pickets were invading stores, roughing up people and urging illegal secondary boycotts of whole supermarkets, shopping centers and food chains.

In Canada, the UFW hit the Dominion Stores, a chain of supermarkets. With Canadian workers behind him, Chavez ordered picketing until the chain took all the boycotted table grapes and lettuce off all their shelves. Hundreds demonstrated against the "whole" store.

And, in Salinas, Calif., when a judge ordered Chavez to end mass picketing against California liquor stores selling Gallo wine (made by AFL-CIO distillers) which the UFW nonetheless was boycotting, Chavez called this "outrageous" and ordered intensified picketing.

All this angered Meany and his Executive Council colleagues. And word went out there would be no boycott. No more money. One leader said, "It was like a new toy to those Chavez people."

Then came more conferences. And Cesar promised to bring his people in line and go only for a product, not storewide boycotts.

Cesar was told that when he delivered discipline, there would be delivered to him the new boycott-- round the world, Farah- style. Watch for it.

Senate to begin debate on campaign reform bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amid charges from the governor's office and some Republican senators that the Senate Democratic leadership is attempting to weaken a strong campaign reform bill passed by the House, senators are expected to begin debate on the measure this week.

Bond says the Senate leadership is attempting "to pull back from reform" by rewriting the House-passed measure.

The Senate Election Committee passed out the unscathed House bill last Thursday after it became apparent that Republican members would seek a delay to study a substitute bill offered by committee chairman Sen. Franklin Payne, D-St. Louis, but thought to have been drafted by other senators. Payne would not reveal the source of the bill.

Major changes in the substitute distributed by Payne include a hike in the limit under which a campaign contributor can remain anonymous. It provides that the identities of contributors of $200 or less need not be reported. The House version established a $25 limit.

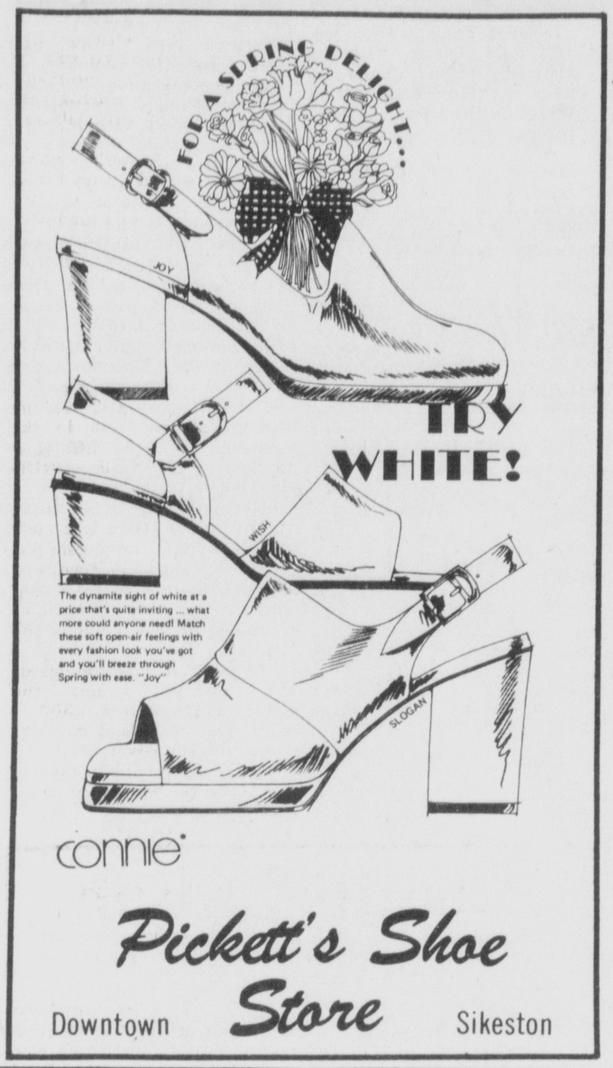

Also changed in the Senate substitute is the defination of a candidate. Under the House measure contributions would have to be reported from the date the first contribution is received or initial expense incurred.

The Senate substitute requires reporting only after an individual has announced candidacy or filed for office.

Under the House bill the commission enforcing provisions of the measure would be appointed by the governor with consent of the Senate from a list submitted by the Supreme Court.

The Senate substitute would create a seven-member commission with two commission members appointed by each political party and two by the Supreme Court. The secretary of state, an elected official, would head the commission.

The Senate substitute doubles the permitted amount to be spent by a candidate in a statewide election to about $600,000.

'Hooked' smoker kicks habit; says anyone can

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters in your column about smokers, how they hate the habit and wish they could get unhooked, but never have you printed a letter with a solution. This may be your first.

I started to smoke when I was 17. I was on my own in the business world and thought if I smoked I'd look older. For a few years it was eight or ten cigarets a day, usually when I was with someone I wanted to impress. Gradually I realized I was smoking more than I had intended. I found myself lighting a cigaret every time I had a cup of coffee, or whenever I reached for a telephone. By the time I was 21, I was hooked.

I coughed, hacked, and burned holes in my best suits. I even burned a hole in the dining room table. I must say my wife was wonderful. She never nagged me to quit because she was smart enough to know that each person must make that decision himself.

Last November some friends from Reno came to spend the weekend. Edna mentioned something about an aquaintance who had been a nicotine freak for 38 years, how she had gone to a clinic in California, checked in on Sunday and left the following Friday-- total cost, $375. Edna said that woman was a chain-smoker, thoroughly addicted, but five days at "that place" produced the miracle. I sent for the literature at once.

On December 2, I left for St. Helena's Hospital and Health Center. When I arrived at the gate I was smoking. Then I saw a sign, "You are entering a non- smoking area. Deposit smoking materials here." I put out my cigaret and tossed it (along with the rest of the pack) into the trash can provided for that purpose.

The next five days were rough, but they were fascinating, too. I met men and women from all over the country. We exercised vigorously, ate vegetarian meals, drank countless glasses of fruit juice (no liquor allowed), listened to lectures, watched films, and took steam and sauna baths to ease the withdrawal symptoms. Then there was "Frank," that horrible- looking, cancer-ridden lung floating in a bottle of alcohol. He managed to turn up in the dining room, the lecture hall, wherever I happened to be.

Although St. Helena's is run by the Seventh Day Adventists, no one tried to sell us religion. I was impressed by the dedication and the quiet dignity of the personnel. They truly believe in what they are doing but they apply no pressure to persuade the guests that theirs is the only way.

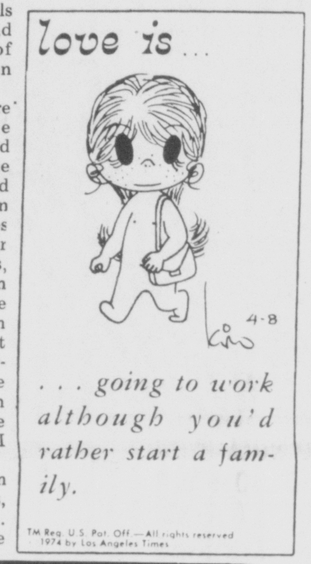

On Friday, December 7, I walked out of St. Helena's feeling very good about myself. "Keep in touch," said Dr. Herschel Lamp, the director. "We want to know how you get along."

From that day to this I haven't had a cigaret. Easy? Of course not! There are times when the craving is so strong I must excuse myself from a meeting and go wash my face with cold water. (They taught us to do this during moments of crisis.) But I have kicked the habit, Honey, and if I can do it, anyone can.

Please print this letter and tell the tobacco junkies who want to quit where to write for information. Thank you.-- Free At Last

Book Review

MAN IN THE TRAP
by Elsworth F. Baker, M.D.
(Discus 18309/$1.95
384pp.)

Wilhelm Reich's controversial theory of human sexuality- that it is based on the movement or blocking of sexual energy- is explained by Dr. Elsworth Baker, the foremost living exponent of Reighian theory, in his book MAN IN THE TRAP, now published in a Discus edition paperback. Dr. Baker, who has spent 20 years as a medical orgonomist, 11 of them in close association with Reich, begins by describing the character types which result from specific blocking of sexual energy at various stages of emotional development. Drawing upon case histories, Dr. Baker then discusses the procedures used in orgonomic therapy to treat, and ultimately remove, blocking.

Reich's theories of sexuality and society, which earned him ostracism and imprisonment in his own lifetime, have gained a new recognition in recent years. In his reasoned and accessible account, Dr. Baker not only presents the specifics of Reichian theory, but considers its explosive implications, among them the failure of society to deal with sexuality in children and adolescents. Dr. Baker comments "Reich has told us much that is true about man, if we can listen and remain objective — even though we wish to run from it."

Aaron faces Downing

ATLANTA (AP)— Henry Aaron, taking in stride the controversy surrounding his quest for baseball immortality, returns to his home park tonight where playing orders from Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn won't be needed.

"Yeah, that's definite I'm going to play tomorrow," the 40- year- old Atlanta Braves' slugger said Sunday at the end of a stormy five- day stay in Cincinnati.

Aaron renews his bid to become the game's all- time home run king in Atlanta Stadium tonight in the Braves' home opener of 1974- against the Los Angeles Dodgers and left-handed pitcher Al Downing.

The soft- spoken star, playing under a direct order from Kuhn, went hitless in three trips Sunday in Atlanta's 5- 3 victory over Cincinnati, leaving him tied with the legendary Babe Ruth at 714 lifetime home runs.

A sellout crowd of 52,870 and a massive national television NBC audience is expected to watch the game and a special 30- minute program in tribute to Aaron.

"We obeyed the commissioner," Aaron told a swarm of sports writers in the Brave clubhouse at Cincinnati Sunday. "I hope everybody's happy. Yes, I'm happy.

"I just hope tomorrow night it all will be over with and things can get back to normal," he said. "It's been quite a week here."

Aaron was called out on strikes in his first two appearances Sunday and then grounded out to third before leaving the game in the middle of the seventh inning.

Spurred by the prolonged controversy over his playing status, Aaron was asked if he had tried to hit a home run.

"I played the game and did the best I could," he said. "It's not easy to walk up there and hit one out. I felt good but I wasn't guessing right. I was looking for a fast ball and the pitcher Clay Kirby threw me all sliders."

The turmoil, which began before spring training when the Braves announced Aaron would not play in Cincinnati, built to the boiling point Saturday after Manager Eddie Matthews announced Aaron would sit out the final two games of the series.

Aaron watched Saturday's nationally televised game from the dugout. The Reds beat the Braves 7- 5. Afterward came word that Kuhn wished to talk with Matthews.

Turkey tags available

JEFFERSON CITY — Tags for the 1974 Missouri turkey season are available now, according to the Department of Conservation.

Resident tags are $7.80 each, non-resident $30.30. The season will run April 22-May 4, with one visibly bearded bird legal. All turkeys must be tagged, either with a permit tag or, in the case of farmers hunting on the land where they live, a homemade tag, and all birds must be checked with head and plumage intact in the county where taken or an adjoining county between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. central daylight time.

The only changes in this season are that all times are daylight. Shooting hours are 6 a.m. to 1 p.m.

All that is needed to hunt turkeys is a tag-- hunters don't need a small game or other permit in addition.

Missouri deer leads Nation

JEFFERSON CITY-- If Missouri isn't the big deer capital of the United States, it'll do till a better one comes along.

For the second straight competition, a Missouri white- tailed deer rack leads the national Boone and Crockett North American Big Game list.

Larry Gibson, Moberly, took a deer with a typical rack in 1971 not more than 200 yards behind his house which has scored 205 Boone and Crockett points-- tops in the nation for the past three seasons and second best ever recorded.

The Boone and Crockett competition is held every three years. In the last summary, a deer taken in 1969 by Jeff Brunk, Revere, then a student at Kirksville State College, scored 199-4/8 points to lead the nation.

The latest award was made in Atlanta, Ga., March 24. Dean Murphy, assistant Game Division chief for the Department of Conservation, accepted the award for Gibson.

Murphy is co- founder of the Show- Me Big Bucks Club which honors Missouri hunters who take trophy racks. The club is one of the nation's most active.

"Maybe we do a better job of uncovering trophy deer than other states," Murphy says. "Or maybe we just have deer with bigger racks."

Ohio has had a similar club since 1958 and its record typical rack scores only 187 6/8. Missouri has a number of racks larger than that.

In fact, but for an error, Missouri would have had the top two racks at Atlanta.

Young Robin Berhorst, Memphis, took a deer, the first he'd ever gotten, in 1972 which Murphy scored at 187- 2/8.

The runner- up rack to Gibson's was reported to Boone and Crockett officials as 190- plus, but when Boone and Crockett called it in and scored it, it proved to be only 172- 1/8-- well below Berhorst's total.

Murphy scored conservatively and, in fact, Boone and Crockett raised Gibson's total. For that matter, a deer taken in 1972 by Larry Ogle of Richland scored 186- 2/8, also bigger than the Boone and Crockett runner- up.

Gibson's deer almost came to grief before it was scored by the Boone and Crockett team.

Trophy rack

Larry Gibson, Moberly, holds the rack of the deer which has been placed by the Boone and Crockett Club second on the all-time national list of typical rack white- tailed deer. Gibson's trophy deer scored tops in the nation for the Boone and Crockett reporting period of the last three years -- second straight time a Missouri deer has led the nation.

Court declines to rule on Lt. Governor's power

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court ruled today that Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps must obey all rules of the Senate while he is acting as presiding officer.

The high court upheld two Senate rules as constitutional and said it would not delineate the lieutenant governor's powers as had been requested. The rules involved assigning bills to committee and ruling on points of order.

These jobs are up to whoever the Senate decides shall conduct them, the decision held.

Last Nov. 30, the Supreme Court held that Phelps has the constitutional right to preside over the Senate.

At present, the Senate president pro tem, Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, rules on points of order and refers bills to committee. The court held this to be constitutional.

In deciding not to rule on other duties of the lieutenant governor, the decision said the court will not reach out and undertake to decide constitutional questions not at issue in the court case.

The unanimous decision means that all Phelps can do is preside over the Senate break tie votes.

Phelps was ordered removed from the Senate last year when he refused to give up the chair to Cason on the last day of the session. The court ruled that Phelps could not be removed as presiding officer.

In the most serious flareup of the controversy this session, the Senate admonished Phelps, by a vote, when they ordered him to recognize a particular senator.

Israeli jet fighter shot down by Syria

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syria shot down an Israeli jet fighter over the Golan Heights front today and the two pilots who bailed out were captured in Lebanon, the Lebanese Defense Ministry said.

Israel confirmed that the plane went down, but denied that it was hit by a missile. The Tel Aviv command said the jet caught fire, apparently as a result of a technical fault.

It was the first Israeli plan lost over the Golan front since the October war.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said the plane, an F4 Phantom, crashed in the Arkoub region near the village of Chebba, only six miles north of the Israeli border. The village is about 39 miles south of Beirut.

A Lebanese spokesman said the two pilots were picked up near the village of Kraibe, about three miles west of Chebba. He said they were safe but would not say whether they were being held.

Lebanon holds two other Israeli Phantom pilots captured during the October war when they bailed out over Lebanon.

Syria said the plane was brought down "when an enemy formation penetrated our air space over Mt. Hermon." It also said its forces battled all night with Israeli troops trying to overrun Syrian positions on Mt. Hermon, but Israel denied this.

Artillery and tank fire blazed along the 40-mile Golan front for the 28th straight day.

Israel admitted using warplanes for the first time since the October war on Saturday. It said air strikes were ordered after the Syrians attacked an Israeli position on Mt. Hermon.

The Tel Aviv command said shooting erupted again today across the Golan truce line, and Israel's military command announced the first capture of a Syrian soldier since the October war.

An Israeli spokesman said Syrian guns and tank cannon resumed firing after sunrise, and artillery duels spread along the 40-mile front. He said no Israeli casualties were reported.

Israel claims it holds 387 Syrian prisoners of war and wants to exchange them for 65 Israelis held in Syria.

R·A·F ENERGY DIET
WITH VITAMIN "E" & "C"
COMBO. SUPPLEMENT

LOS ANGELES (Special) The R•A•F diet has been found to give excellent results in weight loss when followed according to its simple instructions, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with reports of weight loss while still eating most of the foods you are used to. Those who follow the simple diet report a loss of weight without exercise or starvation. Best of all you can still eat regular foods such as steak, chicken, chops, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon and eggs and still lose unwanted weight. The Vitamin "E" & "C" Tabs used with the diet plan supply you with the M.D.R. which otherwise may be lost when following the R•A•F Diet Plan.

The use of the new Vitamin "E" & "C" Tabs and foods prescribed in the plan will through natural action, act to help your body keep fit and not suffer from hunger pangs. This is a solid, common sense diet plan — 100% safe — no unpleasant side effects.

A study of 900 obese persons confirms the value of the low carbohydrate diet and frequent small meals. Despite organized medicines insistence that calories alone are the key to losing weight, the research clearly shows that the source of the calories is equally important. Carbohydrate, says the medical researcher, is the "crucial determinant" regulating the degree of obesity. Supplementing the low carbohydrate diet with polyunsaturated fat (vegetable oil) increases the oxidation of stored fat (palmitate) by 20 to 25% — and that, says the paper, is the way to diminish excess weight.*
